There's no exact English translation

for the Greek word meraki, but it encompasses the instructive idea of loving what you do. Designer Carla Weisberg found inspiration in that term, and the Aegean islands on which the concept is second nature, for a new capsule collection. Each design interprets a traditional motif and is named for a different area: Rhodes boasts an elegant basket weave, while concentric diamonds or hexagons repeat in Thira and Crete; all are in wool and silk. The shaggy wool Milos, wool-silk Patmos, and wool-silk Santorini carry on the geometric exploration. Two colorways offer a choice between updates of the region's famed blue-and-white combo or earthier shades referencing ancient pottery. crosbystreetstudios.com ➤
